FLAGSHIPMEN HOSTS AT ENJOYABLE DANCE

One of the prettiest dances of the summer season was given last evening at the Alexander Young Hotel by the men of the flagships Tennessee and West Virginia. No better night could have been chosen, for the moon was at the full and shone brilliantly on the gay crowd upon the beautiful roof garden. Both the lounging room and makai ballroom were handsomely decorated with flags, pennants and palm branches, and presented an artistic effect, and in these pretty bowers the hosts and their guests danced from early in the evening until a late hour.

At nine o'clock a reception was held in the lounging room, where Admiral Sebree, U. S. N., commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, Mrs. Sebree, Admiral Barry, Captain and Mrs. C. P. Rees, and others received the guests, the bluejackets presenting their friends of the evening and all receiving a cordial welcome.

With two orchestras, one for each ballroom, there was no end of enjoyment, for hardly would one band cease playing than the other would start a waltz or two-step. The young men who had the ball in hand are to be complimented on the manner in which they conducted a very happy event, and the hope was expressed that at some future time another reception and ball may be arranged. Refreshments were served on the roof garden. The committee in charge was as follows:

Tennessee Committees—Floor manager, J. M. Acuff; floor committee, T. A. Fairlie, L. C. Simenel, J. T. Larkin; reception committee, M. M. Glosson, W. E. Smith, H. Hanson; arrangements committee, H. C. Heim, T. J. Reilly, T. G. Shanahan, Wm. Donahue.

West Virginia Committees—Floor manager, W. J. Brown; floor committee, E. A. Ross, Roy Wilson, R. N. Deck; reception committee, E. E. Fetter (chairman), G. J. Kawatzky, E. G. Block, W. H. Busch.

The following appeared on the souvenir programs:

Here's to the Cruisers, part of the fleet, They go so fast they're hard to beat; They say a Battleship is very fine, But me for the Cruiser every time.

They boy in blue, with heart so true, A hearty welcome gives to you; With eyes so bright, and heart so light, He stands to greet you here tonight.

There is a good ship in the bay, The best of all is what we say: We have the flag, we never brag; We fly the dear old Admiral's flag.

AMUSEMENTS

The Empire Theater.

Owing to illness the pianist at the Empire was obliged to leave the show Saturday night, but the famous Bobby Way went through his stunts and afforded as much amusement to the audience as if he had a brass band to furnish jig music. His crayon sketches with lightning speed are really very good and worthy of the attention of the public. The whole program, in which Wallace and Way take part, is surprisingly good. The motion pictures are the latest from the Coast, and they are put on the screen in a way that does not tire the eyes. There is a new pianist making music there now and the performance last night was not marred in any way.

The Jolly Tars.

Go to it. The minstrel show at the Hawaiian Opera House on Friday and Saturday will be worth while. The last fleet show in Honolulu was presented when the Big Four passed through to the Coast, and it was a good one. Most of the boys in the Jolly Tars company, which will appear on Friday, were in that company, and they will do their best to give the people a good two hours of fun. The very latest songs from the Coast will be sung, and the funniest jokes that ever were told will be heard when these boys get on the stage.

It is stated that never since the Navy was organized has there been so many excellent dancers brought together as will be found among the artists on the Pacific fleet. They are finished in every way, and the performance can not but be most satisfactory. There will be an orchestra of twenty-five pieces to render the popular airs brought down by the fleet from the musical center of the Pacific Coast, and it is safe to say that there will be more new songs whistled on the street by the small boy than have been heard here since the last minstrel show was given. Seats are on sale at the Bergstrom music store, and the demand is great.

Orpheum.

The truth was told when the statement was made that the Wise and Milton company would put on its best bill for fleet week. The show given last night was certainly a good one, and was appreciated by a packed house that applauded every act to the echo.

The same bill will be given tonight and tomorrow night; also at the matinee Wednesday.

If you want a real show, that gives two hours of solid fun, don't miss going to the Orpheum. You will surely get your money's worth of enjoyment.

MRS. O'LEARY AND

THE MONDAY WASH

"Well, it's the divvies own toime Oi've been havin', so it is, and I'm that tired out I could just be settin' down an' havin' a good cry so I could. An' did ye ever hear the loike uv it, I ax ye? There's Mrs. O'Reilly down there in the yard a washin' away at her tub o' clothes an' me upstairs, agumpin' an' a pumpin', an' the divvle a sup a wather can I be after raisin'." "Mrs. O'Reilly, I hollers from the windy. 'Mrs. O'Reilly, will ye be after stoppin' off the wather an' givin' the rist uv us a chanct?"

"Gwan," sez she, "who's nain' the wather?"

"'Tis yerself," sez I, "an' the dear knows, 'tis yer clothes nades the washin', an' it's meself wouldn't be be grudgin' ye the use of the wather if ye would only be 'asin' up wanst in a while an' 'Evin' a lady a chanct to clane her kitchen flane."

"Don't be puttin' an yer airs to me, Bridget O'Leary," says she, "sure 'tis meself knows since ye coom lady, an' since when ye had a kitchen widout the pig naitin' in the corner. Lady, indeed, sez she, 'Lady, Lord save us all, don't be a-laddin' me!'"

"I'll show ye the lady I am, if I coom down to ye, Mrs. O'Reilly," sez I.

"O'm riddy for ye," says she.

"Well, down I went, an' the first thing grates me eye is the booker uv swappin' 'Lift in the yard be the house-keeper. Up I takes it an' into the tub an' clane clothes I foires ut."

"There," sez Oi, "that's the kind uv a lady Oi am, Mrs. Reilly!"

"Well, Oi'll go ball I can be ye," sez she, an' she ups with a pail o' ends an' drinches me fram head to fut.

"Well, just as we was about to have it hot an' heavy, in come one uv them frish young laddybucks wid a brass shield, an' wid a grin on the face uv him, an' showin' us a fish full uv papers, sez he: 'We've sthopped the wather off for two hours,' sez he, 'while we be a repairin' uv the main poipe.' We was that mad, the two uv us grabbed him an' gave him somethin' worth while repairin'! We'll tache him to be disturbin' of the pace between friends, so we will!"

"Oi must be runnin' up stairs now, takin' off me wet clothes, an' seein' how me corn'd bafe is comin' on. Sure Oi want Mrs. O'Reilly to be havin' a boite wid me; 'tis toired she must be after her harrd day's washin'."

ALL HE KNEW.

W. D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees, desired to instance, in his Detroit office, the necessity for intelligence in all railway work.

"A friend of mine," he said, "traveling in India, saw a native tester, at Marwar Junction, passing from carriage to carriage in the usual manner, tapping each wheel with a hammer."

"Knowing that this man only got about six cents a day, and that therefore he was liable to do the simplest job unintelligently, my friend said to him:

"What are you tapping the wheels like that for?"

"It is my orders," said the native.

"But what's the use of it?" my friend persisted.

"Heaven alone knows," said the native, with a gentle shrug. "I have been doing it, though, for eighteen years. It is the order of authority."
